The Long Island Developmental Disabilities Service Office has awarded our Foundation funds to provide training to families of children with developmental disabilities residing in Nassau and Suffolk County. Each interested family will be provided with six hours of individual training to address challenges they face within home and community settings.

The training will be either provided by or overseen by a Board Certified Behavior Analyst. The training can take place either in the home or at a place within the family's community.

If you know of a family that could benefit from this service, please forward them our contact information. We have resources for a limited number of families who meet OMRDD's guidelines to receive services. Families will be accepted into the program on a first come first serve basis.
